Here is a pro tip that many experienced users swear by when working with Is Pandabuy Dispute: create a separate sheet for your reference data. This includes things like shipping carrier rates, tax brackets, platform fee structures, and common product categories. Then use VLOOKUP or INDEX-MATCH to pull this data into your main tracking sheet. This approach keeps your main sheet clean and makes it easy to update reference data without touching your core records. It also means that if fee structures change, you only need to update one cell instead of hundreds of rows. Trust us, this simple habit will save you countless hours.

One thing that experienced buyers always check before purchasing through Is Pandabuy Dispute is the seller's reputation and history. Look for sellers with high ratings, a long track record, and responsive customer service. Read both positive and negative reviews to get a balanced picture. Be especially cautious of sellers who have only perfect reviews with generic comments, as these may be fabricated. A few negative reviews are actually a good sign because they indicate the feedback system is genuine. Pay attention to how the seller responds to negative feedback, as this tells you a lot about their customer service quality.

If you want to take your Is Pandabuy Dispute workflow to the next level, consider learning basic automation. Tools like Google Apps Script, Zapier, or n8n can automate repetitive tasks like copying data between sheets, sending notifications when order statuses change, or generating summary reports at the end of each week. You do not need to be a developer to set up basic automations. Many platforms offer pre-built templates and tutorials that walk you through the process step by step. Start with one simple automation and gradually build from there as you become more comfortable.
